Tuesday April 21, 2015 at Noon:

Topic – QRadar

QRadar is the Gartner-leading Security Intelligence and Event Management (SIEM) system.

IT security is something that keeps your CEO up at night. WE GUARANTEE IT. The top 5 data breaches in the first half of 2014 include eBay, Michael's Stores, Montana Department of Public Health and Human Services, Variable Annuity Life Insurance Company, Spec's and St. Joseph Health System. That just the top 5 and that didn't include the larger, more public breaches such as at Target, United Health Care and the more local breaches (Indiana based) Indiana University, Butler University and St. Vincent Breast Center in Indianapolis. If you, or your management, is not paying attention to what is happening in this space, you should be simply based on the legal and financial ramifications for your company.

We will discuss the current security threat landscape, the tools that are applicable to specific kinds of attacks, and suggest approaches for managing information security that are practical, realistic, and cost-effective. This is not a topic that is going to fade away any time soon, so gear up now and start your education.

Our speaker on April 21st will be Parke Cummins from Ciber. Parke has over 30 years in the IT industry, from programming with punched cards to programming with hybrid applications and cloud integrations. He has worked in systems development as an advisory programmer with IBM in Rochester, MN and then moved to Senior consulting manager at Ciber. Parke is an IBM certified deployment professional for QRadar. Grant has 18 years of experience in the System i marketplace and has spoken at numerous events such as COMMON, COMMON Europe, DevCon, and System i user groups across the country.
